no matter how improbable, must be the Truth. (Sherlock Holmes)

Neil & I, ruminating in the Ivory Tower at 36½ Union St, stumbled onto more than a rumination by Rajni Kothari:

.....In past thinking, the State was to be the author of social transformation. That was the real misjudgment about the processes and pitfalls of secular power.....(Alternatives, April 1986).....

This GKG is devoted to exposing the Professional War Machine's misjudgment in administering a process which, in ignorance, was perceived as the secular power of Authoritarianism.....

One of its plots, concocted in indecency's depths and executed with unusual disregard for human life, lies today under media cover. Under scrutiny of the logic of understanding, Cover-up unravels, revealing the inferno's abyss.....

The U.S. Congress has been furnished evidence with which it can extricate the Truth from those who lived and Know it, that constitutional impeachment may proceed.....

..... the government of the United States
downed Korean Air Lines Flight 007 and hoodwinked the government of the Soviet Union into its admission of guilt.....

(EXPLO 007, inside cover, GKG Partners, 1986)

A couple of months after "shootdown", Jeffrey St John, author of The Day of the Cobra (Thomas Nelson, 1984) sent Secretary Shultz a list of questions. Following is part of one written reply:

> .... It should be remembered that for six days after the attack, the Soviets refused to admit that they had shot down the airliner. They said it had left their airspace.
> They only admitted they had shot it down because we and the Japanese had presented the world with irrefutable evidence of the Soviet misdeed.
>
> The transcript of the radio transmissions between the Korean airliner and the air traffic controllers at Tokyo's Narita airport provided by the Japanese government, clearly indicated that KAL 007's pilot had no indication he was flying off course or that he was being pursued by Soviet interceptors.....

Understanding, ".... it had left their airspace...."
opens the "irrefutable evidence" abyss.

GKG·3·VIII·86

.... it is apparent that the early rescue effort by the Japanese fishing boats was called off because of the false [safe on] Sakhalin story ....

the false story raises profound questions as whether the US needed to delay not only to prepare a propaganda assault but to cover up the possible complicity of US intelligence agencies in the fatal flight of 007. This of course is the most relevant and loaded question of all and no researcher has yet been able to find the "smoking gun" capable of making a major dent in the official version of events, though conspiracy theories, supported by circumstantial evidence abound. David Hollander & Steven Saint
(The Unquiet Grave, L A Weekly, XI/1/85)

On the next page, GKG's 5, EXPLO's Figure 26 only appears complex because it diagrams two separate, interconnected events in two dimensions instead of four.

The first occurs at the launch site over the Sea of Japan. One conspirator sees the Russian missiles launched at the RC-135 and reports it by radio to another conspirator.

Immediately on receipt of the missile-launch intelligence, the second conspirator triggers the second event: explosion of the onboard device which knocks KA 007 out of the sky into the Pacific.

That was Conspiracy's executive action which signalled the start of Coverup. Eight hours later this obfuscation was off to a flying start with two lies in the NYTimes for IX/1/83:

> .... [on last contact] the crew said the aircraft was 113 miles south of Nemuro ....
> "....the plane is down [on a Soviet island] and apparently the passengers are safe" ....

Inside Figure 26's hatched area is where the bomber, the triggerman was located. He was close enough (350 NM) to missile-launch to receive the observer's report and also close enough (150 NM) to KA 007 to radio the signal that created the second event.

the smoke from this gun is in the brain of the believer.

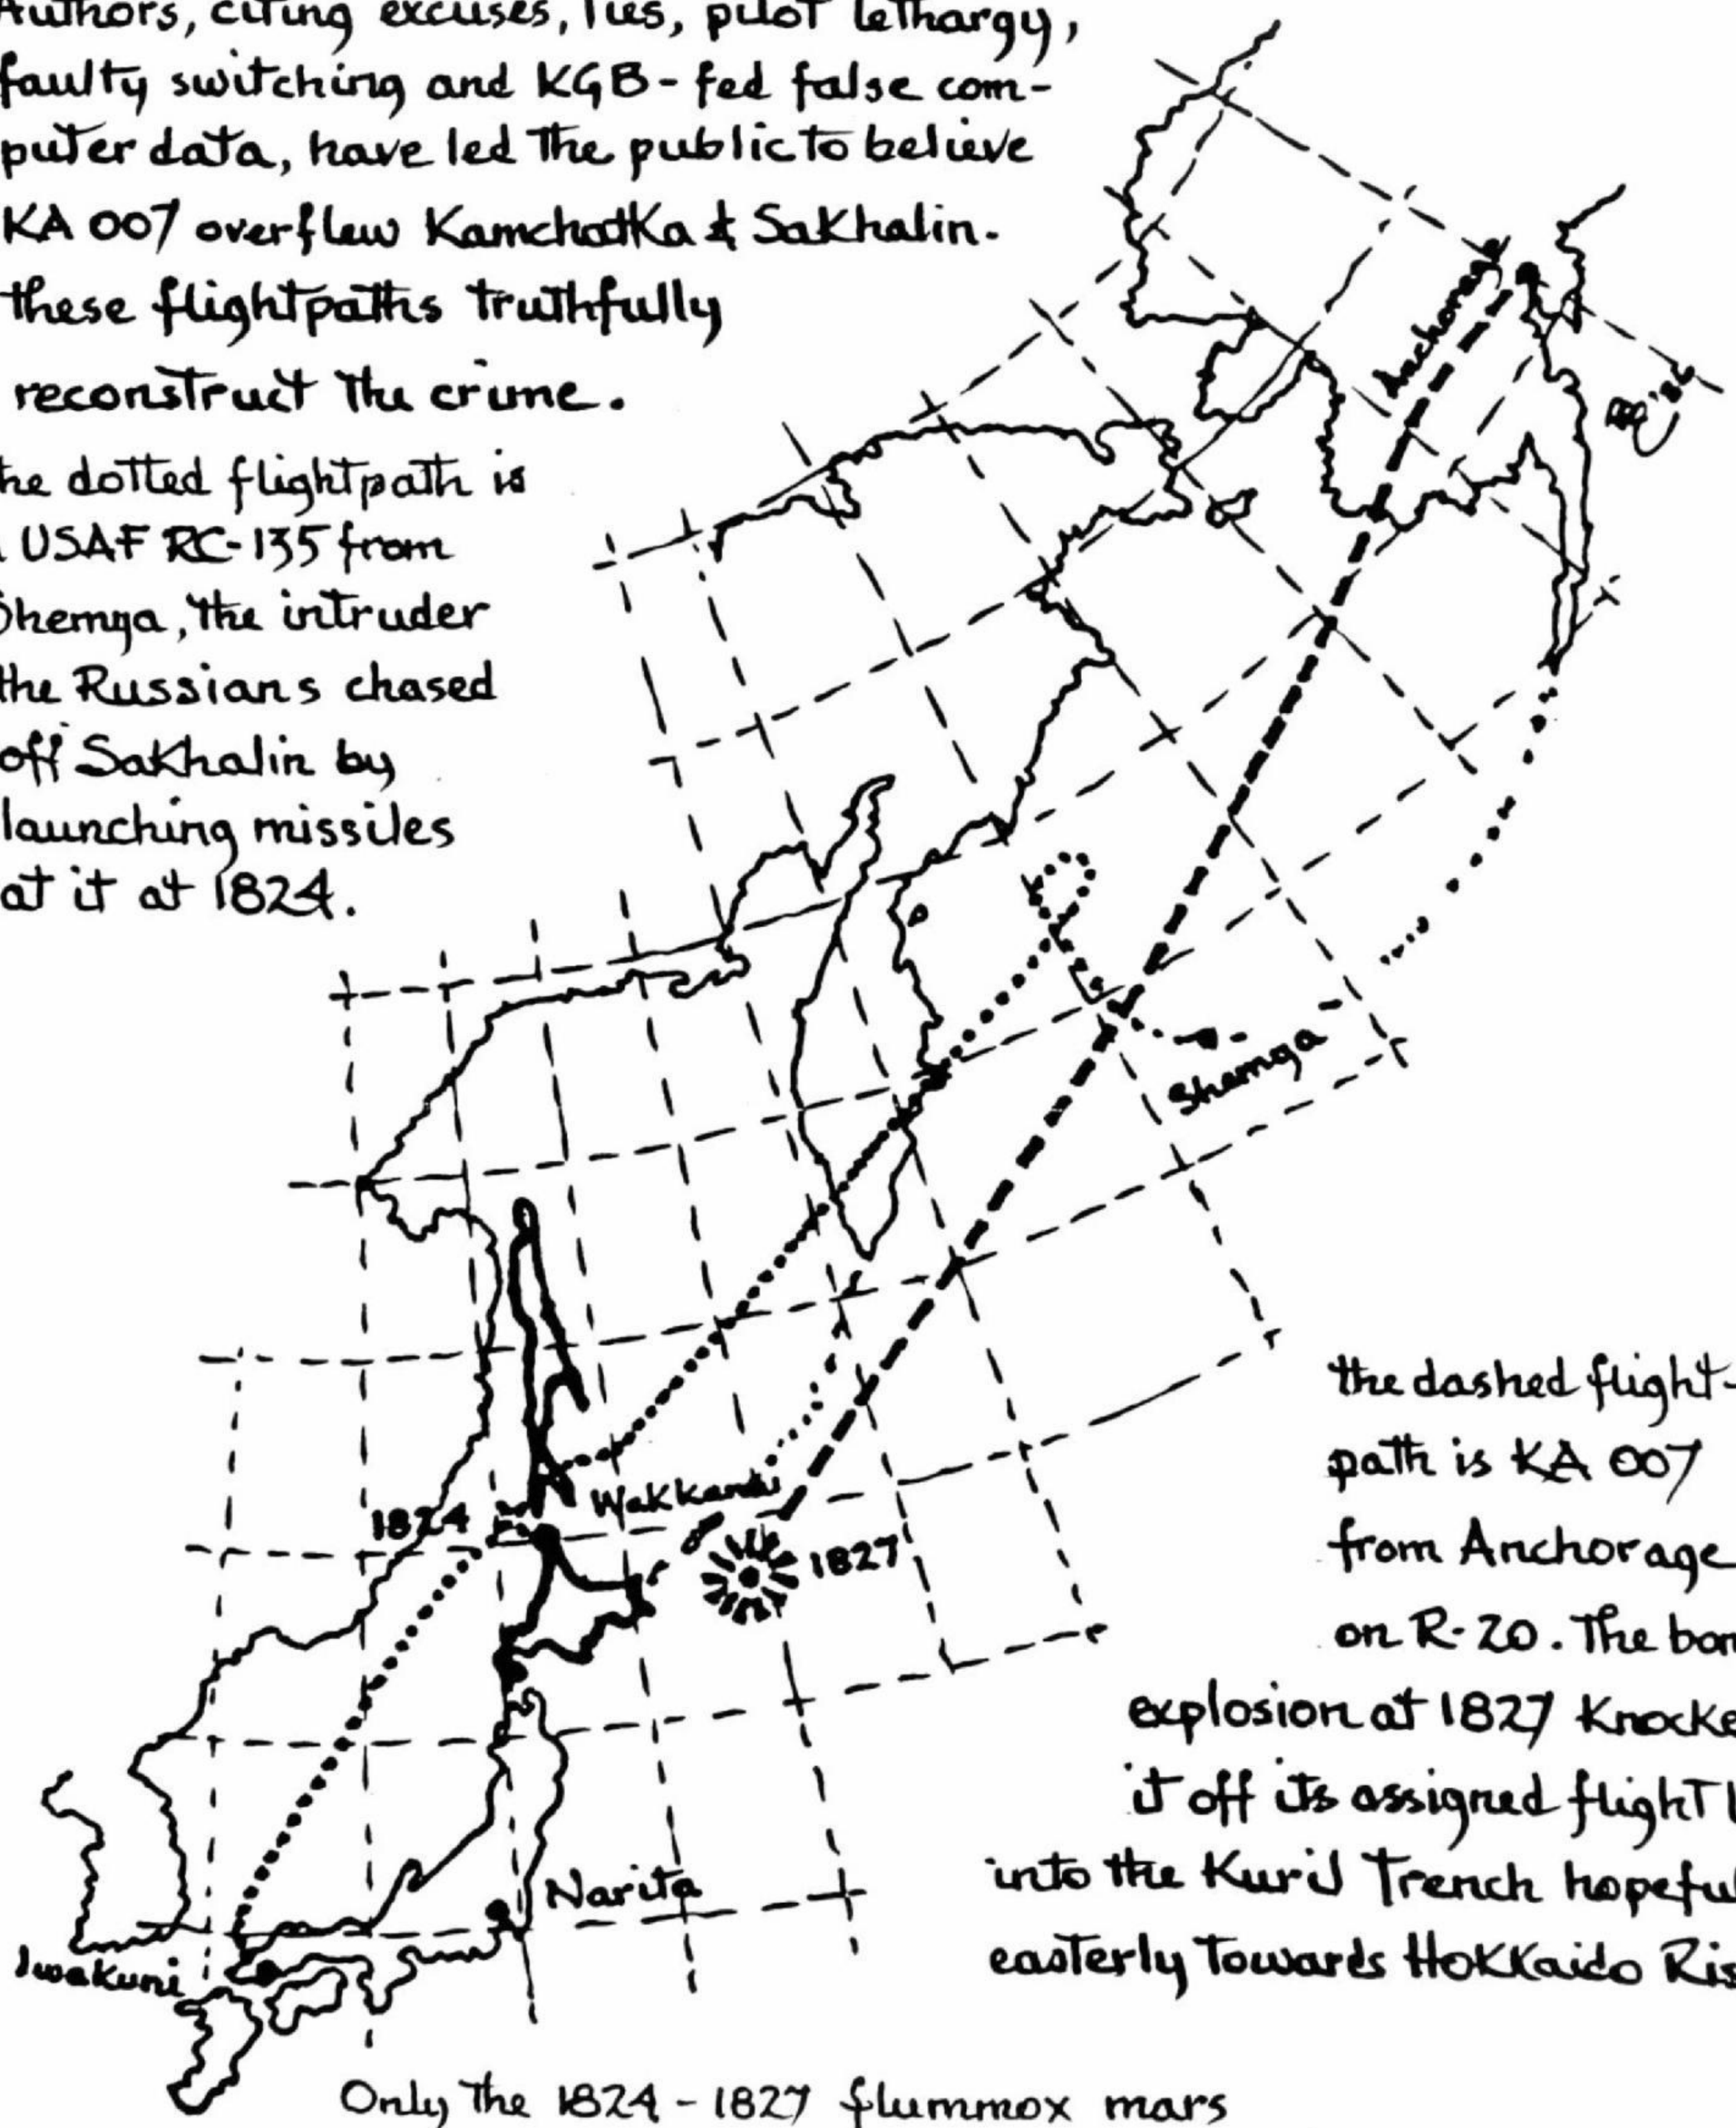
GKG·5·VIII·86

RC-135 Tokyo/GMT/Washington KA 007

Authors, citing excuses, lies, pilot lethargy, faulty switching and KGB-fed false computer data, have led the public to believe KA 007 overflew Kamchatka & Sakhalin. these flightpaths truthfully reconstruct the crime.



the dotted flightpath is a USAF RC-135 from Shemya, the intruder the Russians chased off Sakhalin by launching missiles at it at 1824.

the dashed flightpath is KA 007 from Anchorage on R-20. The bomb explosion at 1827 knocked it off its assigned flight level into the Kuril Trench hopefully easterly towards Hokkaido Rise

Only the 1824 - 1827 flummox mars the Professional War Machine's marriage of these two flightpaths. 3 years of Coverup, and happiness is a thing called divorce

SHOOTDOWN by RW Johnson (Viking, 1986).....thanks for small favors.

The author is a Fellow in Politics in Oxford. Depth of research, breadth of background material and readability place this scholar's work head and shoulders above everything else published on this case. SHOOTDOWN is far and away the best of breed. The author is a gentleman; no dirty-word "conspiracy" sullies his offering. Nonetheless we wish to thank SHOOTDOWN for seven small, but vital favors.

1) it notes the removal of 1800 lbs of payload: we think someone removing cargo could easily stash a packaged bomb aboard.

2) it notes the addition of 10,000 lbs of fuel: we think how much quicker 5 tons would send the B-747 to Davey Jones' locker.

3) it notes possibly significant scribblings by Capt Chun in the Flightplan, the release sheet and manifest: we think the Captain may not have written them. Fellows in Politics need to wade through L H Oswald's Marine Corps file, accepted as evidence by the Warren Commission, before giving the US Professional War Machine the time of day.

4) it notes Capt Chun's conversation with Tokyo air-traffic controllers alongside the Russian's fighter-chatter with his control and avers Chun is lying: we think, no, we know, the English translation lied twice... how many more times ???

5) it notes descent after 1827 on its diagram of the JDA altitude data, page 25 : the Pearson/Keppel submission in The Nation, p 104, VIII/17-24/85, shows that flightpath, mislabelled "KAL 007", disappearing off the scope at 32,000ft. The dive is news to JDA, KGB & GKG.

6) it notes William Clark's speech IX/14/83:

> ... the absolute and incontrovertible fact is that KAL 007 was not on an intelligence-gathering mission ... (p 196)

we think this is incontrovertible evidence that National Security Adviser William Clark came face to face with the truth of what William Casey's CIA had pulled off over Sakhalin and the blue Pacific. Realizing that NSC had been had along with KGB et al, Clark bowed out, via Interior, leaving McFarlane to handle the moles in State, NSC, CIA, DOD, NSA, DIA and who knows where else??

7) it notes, almost paranthetically :

> ... Casey remained invisible throughout the crisis ... (p 97)

almost on cue, Washington Post counterpoint, VI/26/86, brings the Director on fortissimo:

> ... Casey has warned [two publishers] they could be violating the law if their books include "secret communications" ... he was planning to look into a book ... entitled "Shootdown"....

We think Mr Johnson could "warn" Mr Casey that if the NYTimes can print "secret comunications" like "113 miles south of Nemuro" and "safe on Sakhalin", so can SHOOTDOWN.... and retreat quickly to the newly refurbished "safe house" in the middle of New York Harbor run by a woman who thinks she's only 100 years old. (good luck)

GKG·7·VIII·86

WRL's Peace Calendar, The Pen Is Mightier Than The Sword, is a constant source of comfort and joy, a veritable Linus-blanket in these troublous times. With the exception of the NYTimes quote, the following are from this 1986 day-by-day reminder there are Alternatives.

.... The International Court of Justice ruled today that the Reagan Administration had broken international law and violated Nicaraguan sovereignity by aiding the anti-Gvoernment rebels. The Court .... ordered Washington to halt the "arming and training" of the insurgents and pay Nicaragua for damages caused by military attacks ....

In January 1985 the Administration said it would defy the Court and ignore further proceedings .... (NYTimes, VI/28/86)

I don't know of any country that has gotten into war by being too strong, unless it was an aggressive nation. (Ronald Reagan)

You can't fool all of the people all of the time, but if you can fool them once, it's good for four years. (Roger Price)

The world is divided into two groups of people: the Christian anti-Communists and the others. (John Foster Dulles)

.... and if totalitarianism comes to this country, it will surely do so in the guise of 100% Americanism. (Huey Long)

Our problems stem from our acceptance of this filthy, rotten system. (Dorothy Day)

I would say that I'm a non-violent soldier. In place of weapons of violence, you have to use your mind, your heart, your sense of humor, every faculty available to you.... because no one has the right to take the life of another human being. (Joan Baez)

If you are not willing to fight for what you want, then you deserve what you get. (Rev. C T Vivian)

We're nominating this one for next year's calendar:

We're not anti-Jewish, not anti-black, not anti-anything except anti-stupid/and above all anti-socialist and anti-Communist. (Robert White)

GKG·8·VIII·86

EXPLO 007 will come as a surprise to many of you:

> The government of the United States downed Korean Air Lines Flight 007 and hoodwinked the government of the Soviet Union into its admission of guilt.
> (inside front cover)

> Let us call the crime for what it is, wanton, calculated, deliberate murder ....Charles Lichtenstein (p 40)

This book by assassinologist R B Cutler, was written from the progressively jaundiced point of view brought on by 20 years of research into the political murders after JFK.

> .... without batting an eye over the first couple of contradictory news bulletins [007's last position was 113 miles south of Nemuro and 30 minutes later it's safe on Sakhalin] Media laps the story up and regurgitates it ad nauseum. As in Dallas in '63, in Memphis and LA in '68, in Edgartown in '69, so in Seoul/Washington in '83: Lone-Assassin myth-making works like a charm. No one thinks; no one questions; no one rocks the boat and the Russians end up with egg all over what's left of their face .... (p 146)

> Single acts of tyranny may be ascribed to the accidental opinion of the day; but a series of oppressions begun at a distinguished period, and pursued unalterably through every change of ministers, too plainly prove a deliberate, systematic plan of reducing us to slavery. Thomas Jefferson (p 64)

Fifty years of the US Professional War Machine's systematic plan to pay any price to kill Peace has all but reduced us to the slavery of War. Can Truth's bludgeon unshackle Change, our only constant?

> EXPLO's objective is to provide Congress with a vehicle with which to pluck the officers of the Executive Branch, responsible for this crime, from their military play-pen...
> (p 182)

Congress needs your courage .... write, wire and call incessantly
